

NEW YORK -OBITS

New York Daily Times - 15 Feb 1855

In Jersey City, on Tuesday Feb 13, John M de CIPLET, a native of Belgium, aged 65.

The friends and acquaintances of the family are respectfully invited to attend his funeral without further invitation, from his late residence, #2 Grove St, Jersey City on Thursday the 15th, at 1 o'clock pm.

New York Times – 21 March 1861

In this City, on Wednesday March 20, suddenly, Nazaire STRUELENS, of the firm of STRUELENS & PALMERS, of this city, a native of Gramont, Belgium, in the 41st year of his age.

His friends and those of his partners, are respectfully invited to attend the funeral from his late residence #213 East 10th Street, near 2nd Ave on Friday at 8 ½ o'clock am from whence the remains will be taken to the Church of St Vincent De Paul, where the services will be held at 9 ½ o'clock.

New York Times – 25 Feb 1866

On Friday Feb 23, Ferdinand CORNELIS a native of Antwerp Belgium, in the 44th year of his age. The relatives and friends of the family are invited to attend the funeral from his late residence, Lafayette Ave 6th house east of Tompkins Av, Brooklyn, on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

New York Times – 27 Feb 1867

On Sunday evening, Feb 24, at his residence at Fordham, Henry W T MALI, Consul General of Belgium, in the 63rd year of his age. The friends of the family are invited to attend his funeral from St James Church, Fordham, on Wednesday, the 27th inst, at 3 ½ pm. Carriages will be in waiting at Fordham Station, Harlem railroad on the arrival of the 2 1/2pm train from New York.

New York Times – 22 May 1880

The Prince DE LIGNE – A cable dispatch announces the death yesterday of Eugene LAMORAL, Prince de Ligne, d'Amblève and d'Epinoy, one of the most eminent of Belgium's statesmen, in the 77th year of his age. The Prince de Ligne was born at Brussels, Jan 23, 1804. After the revolution of 1830, which resulted in the independence of Belgium, his friends endeavored to press his claims to the throne, but he had little sympathy with the national cause and preferred to hold himself in the background. An ardent Catholic, he saw in the independence of his country the first step toward a repudiation of the claims of his Church to temporal and political power and for this reason he held aloof at the outset from taking any part in the national drama. The event proved to be as he foresaw and the two parties formed in Belgium were the Catholic and the Liberal, or Anti-Church, Parties. The former, however, prevailed for many years, and in 1838 Prince de Ligne consented to emerge from his retirement and represent Belgium at the coronation of Queen Victoria. In 1842 he was made Ambassador to France and held this position for six years. In 1848 he was accredited to the Court of Italy, where he remained one year. He was elected to the Belgian Senate in 1851, and made President of that body in 1852, an office which he held continuously until 1878, when the Liberals gained both the Senate and the House and the entire Government underwent a change. In 1868 he was made one of the Privy Councilors of State and remained so for 15 years. He was a Chevalier of the Golden Fleece, a Grand Officer of the Order of Leopold, and a Grand Knight of the Legion of Honor. The house of Ligne is allied to the greatest families of Europe. The Prince was married three times and leaves five children.

New York Times – May 18, 1882

At Verviers, Belgium, on Tuesday May 16, Jules MALI, in his 65th year.

New York Times – Oct 23, 1883

At Verviers, Belgium, on Sunday Oct 21, Hippolyte MALI of Brooklyn.

New York Times, 5 Mar 1887

Pierre Jean BECKX, the aged General of the Society of Jesus, died suddenly at Rome yesterday. He was born at Sichem, in Belgium, in 1795 and educated for the church. He entered the priesthood at an early age and was admitted into the Society of Jesus at Hildesheim in October, 1819. It was not long before Father Beckx was entrusted with important missions. His tact and talent were very soon discovered and his superiors were quick to acknowledge the fact that he was very valuable to them. When Duke Ferdinand of Anhalt Kothen was converted to Catholicism young Father Beckx became his spiritual confessor and for a number of years held the office of priest of the church which was erected at Kothen. After the decease of the Duke he remained at court with his widow, the Countess Julia, with whom he subsequently went to Vienna. In 1847 Father Beckx was appointed Procurator for the Province of Austria, in which capacity he went to the College of Procurators at Rome. In the following year, owing to the political troubles which were then prevailing, the Jesuits were temporarily driven from Austria and Father Beckx, being therefore unable to return to that country, went to Belgium where, after having held various places, he was appointed Rector of the Jesuit college at Louvain. When the Jesuits were re-established in the Austrian Empire and the revolutionary troubles had somewhat subsided, Father Beckx zealously supported the projects of the Government which were very favorable to the interests of the church. It was entirely owing to his powerful influence that Cardinal SZEITOWSKY, Primate of Hungary, succeeded in obtaining the reinstatement of the Jesuits in that portion of the empire and in founding the novitiate at Tyrnan. In 1853 he was sent to the assembly summoned to Rome to participate in the election of a successor to Father Roothan, and was himself appointed Superior of the Order of Jesus to fill the vacant place. His clever management and excellent judgment have contributed greatly to the success of the Jesuits since that time in various European, an especially Protestant countries. At the time of the suppression a Rome of the convents of his order he retired to Florence and became the principal writer for the Civitta Cattolica. During the last months of the life of Pius IX, there was some talk of departing from the Cardinal upon Father Beckx. In the month of January 1879, at the time when the triumph of the Republican Party in France was complete, a letter was printed in l'Univers from the General to his provincial friends declaring to the spiritual interests of the church, had been and always should be entirely indifferent to political questions. Besides some minor writings and occasional discourses, Father Beckx published a "Mois de Marie" in Vienna in 1843, which has been translated into various languages and gone through numerous editions.

New York Times, 29 Jan 1888

M. Charles LASALLE, formerly editor and proprietor of the Courrier des Etats-Unis, died at his Winter residence, Green Cove Springs, Florida, yesterday, in the seventy-first year of his age. He was a native of Liege, Belgium, where he was born on October 1817. When scarcely more than a boy he joined the Ross expedition to the Arctic and on his return, after a short sojourn in Canada came to this city, where he settled for life. He served his apprenticeship as a compositor and established a printing office of his own now nearly 40 years ago and it was here that the Courrier des Etats-Unis was printed. In 1851, when M. Arpin, who had succeeded M. Gaillardet as proprietor of the Courrier, retired M. Lasalle became the owner of the paper, and he continued as its responsible director and manager until May 1882, when failing health and the possession of an ample fortune induced him to retire in his turn and leave the journal in the hands of its present proprietor. As a journalist M Lasalle was very successful. Nobody comprehended better than he the needs of a paper like the Courrier, depending for support on the comparatively small French population of this city, and his administration was such as to form one of the most powerful elements of the prosperity of the paper. Personally he was a kind, generous, hospitable gentleman, with a hand always open to the demands of honest poverty. His house in this city was for years the rendez-vous of a select society of French and American people and he was a liberal but discriminating patron of art. For several years past he spent his Winters in Florida, where he had invested largely in property, seeking relief in that mild climate from asthma and other diseases which afflicted his declining years, and to which he finally succumbed.

New York Times – 31 Oct 1890

Count Edgar Charles Fernand Edouard D'AUXY died Wednesday morning last at the Pavilion Hotel, New Brighton, SI. The Duke D'Auxy, the eldest brother of the Count, with the Duchess and their daughter, was present at the death. Count D'Auxy was born in Belgium June 8, 1862 and was unmarried. He had been suffering for some time from gastritis and came to America last May for the benefit of his health. He caught a severe cold a few days ago which developed into pneumonia. The funeral will be held this morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Church of St Vincent de Paul on West 23rd Street. The body will be placed in a vault and removed to Belgium in the Fall.

New York Times, 4 Jan 1896

The Rev. Brother ROMUALD, visitor of the Christian Brothers for the Maryland District, died in Prince George's County, Md., Thursday, of acute bronchitis. He was born in Belgium sixty-six years ago. After being graduated from the University of Luxembourg, he came to the United States, and entered the Order of Christian Brothers at St Louis, in 1853. Having taught in Montreal and Kingston for some years, he was transferred to Baltimore and thence to Chicago and Philadelphia. In Philadelphia he was appointed to the Presidency of La Salle College in 1872. Brother Romuald was subsequently visitor to St. Mary's College, San Francisco; President of the St Joseph's College, Missouri and of the St Louis College of Christian Brothers. He was a man of great ability and varied accomplishments.

New York Times, April 21, 1897

Brother Rufinus VAN VOLTEM, the presiding housekeeper of St Francis's parsonage, died yesterday in St. Mary's Hospital, in Hoboken, of a complication of diseases. Brother Rufinus was born in Belgium forty-four years ago, and had been a Franciscan Brother for twenty-three years, He came to America three years ago and in October last was assigned to St Francis Church, this city, to look after the church household possessions. Interment will be in the Franciscan cemetery, at Trenton, NJ.

New York Times, 7 Apr 1899

Felix BROWN died yesterday at his home at Elizabeth. On March 27 he was stricken with paralysis and never recovered consciousness. He was a member of the firm of A&F Brown, owners of the Progress Iron Works. Mr. Brown was born in Belgium nearly seventy years ago. His father was an Englishman. He came to this country fifty years ago and worked for an ironworker named Morgan in this city. Mr. Morgan thought so highly of Mr. Brown that he established him and his brother in business. Ten years ago the brothers removed to Elizabeth. The firm, which has for the last few years consisted of Mr. Brown and his sons, Charles and Felix, employs over three hundred men. Mr. Brown invented or contributed to many inventions. One of the most noted was the foghorn now in use in United States lighthouses and most other countries. He also invented the machine used for cutting block sugar. This invention was extensively used until the present compressing appliances were evolved. Mr. Brown was one of the original members of the Arion Society of New York and always retained his membership. His death is said to leave but one of the original members alive. Besides his two sons, he leaves five daughters and seven grandchildren.

New York Times, May 19, 1901

Monroe, Mich, May 18 – The Very Rev. Mgr Edwin JOOS, Vicar General of Detroit diocese, and domestic prelate to his Holiness Pope Leo, died here today. He was in charge of St. Mary's Academy. Mgr Joos was born in Belgium in 1825. He was ordained a priest in the Cathedral of St. Bavo in 1848 and eight years later came to the United States, being assigned to a church in Detroit. In 1877 he was appointed Administrator of the diocese, with the title of Vicar General. He was made domestic prelate in 1889. Mgr. Joos was several times offered a Bishopric, but always declined the appointment.

New York Times, Jun 24, 1911

John H THIRY, father of the school savings bank system, and for many years interested in educational affairs in Queens County and more recently in Greater New York, died at his home in 131 Academy Street, in the Dutch Kills section of Long Island City, yesterday noon. Last New Year's Eve he celebrated his eighty-ninth birthday, and said at the time that he hoped to round out a century. An attack of illness last Winter, following a touch of the grip, caused considerable anxiety among his friends, but he rallied and was soon around actively engaged in his educational labors and in his garden, in which he had always taken a great pride. Tuesday of this week Mr. THIRY was suddenly taken with stomach trouble. His condition gradually became so serious that his two sons, Ralph and Joseph, children by his first wife, and who are both more than sixty years of age, were summoned. Mr. Thiry was born in Belgium in 1822, and fitting himself for the profession of teaching, later took a position with the Minister of Public Works in his native place, and in 1859 came to America. He started in as a dealer in books in a small store at Canal and Centre Streets, and in eight years time he was occupying two other stores in Canal and Walker Streets. In 1868 he moved to 730 Broadway, and, getting together a moderate competency he sold out his business and in 1873 moved to Long Island City, where he bought considerable property, which has since increased in value and had given him considerable of a fortune. It was in Long Island that he began his educational work by serving on the local School Board of that place under different administrations, and it was there that he established the school savings bank system, which has since spread to all parts of the globe. Hundreds of thousands of children are now enrolled in this system, and their total deposits run into the millions. Exhibits of the system were made at the World's Fair and also at the Paris Exposition, where Mr. Thiry was the guest of the President of France. His first wife was Miss Ernestine de Samblanc, who died in Long Island City in 1895. Five years later Mr. Thiry came into prominence by wedding Miss Margaret O'Connor, twenty years old. Then Mr Thiry at seventy-eight years, began to gather about him a young family. Every new arrival was hailed with delight by the venerable educator. The first child of this second marriage was John H. Jr., who died within a year of his birth. Then Mr. Thiry adopted a boy, to whom he gave the name of George Thiry, and who is now eleven years old. Then Henrietta, who is nine years old, was born. She was followed by Francis, now seven years old; Ernestine, three years old and James Henry, the last arrival who is now two years old. James Henry was originally named for Dr. Cook, but his name was changed when doubt was cast on Dr Cook's alleged discovery of the north pole. Possessed of unusual activity and energy Mr. Thiry was always at work. His library and study were filled with a collection of books and manuscripts. In his garden he grew many varieties of grapes, and one of his pet hobbies was the manufacture of his own wines. He frequently declared that he had lived three existences. His first period from his birth to the time of his retirement from business on account of ill-health and he began his second period when he regained his health by living close to Mother Earth and digging in his garden. His second period closed with the death of his first wife, when he suddenly became feeble and aged and he entered on his third period when he married Miss O'Connor. Funeral services will be held in St. Patrick's Church, Long Island City, on Monday morning, and the interment will be made in Calvary Cemetery. Mr. Thiry was a member of School Board No 41 in Queens.

New York Times, Mar 2, 1912

Albany, NY, March 1 – Alexander FRANCOIS, a noted artist in his day, died at his home here today. He was born in Belgium eighty-eight years ago. After a course of art study in Paris, at the age of 25 he came to this country and opened a studio in New York City. His landscapes won for him a wife reputation. Later he came to Albany. One of his first pieces of work here was a picture of Lincoln which has been considered his masterpiece. Another of his pictures which received wide recognition was "The Wreck of the Arctic". In the Court of Appeals gallery of portraits are several pictures by Mr. Francois. Mr. Francois was the last survivor of a coterie of famous local artists, such as Palmer, Twitchell, Hart and Hunt.

New York Times, May 24, 1914

St Louis, May 23 – Lewis D DOZIER, capitalist, philanthropist, and a member of one of the oldest families of St. Louis, died here today of hardening of the arteries at the age of 88years. Mr. Dozier was a member of the Executive Committee of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. He was one of the organizers of the St. Louis Aero Club and was its first President

New York Times, Jul 26, 1914

Chicago, July 23 – Charles HENROTIN, first President of the Chicago Stock Exchange when it was established in 1882 resident Consul for Belgium and Consul General for Turkey, died at his home today. Yesterday he was on the floor of the Exchange as usual. Charles Henrotin, born in Belgium April 15, 1843, received his education in the Polytechnic School at Tournay, Belgium, and shortly after his graduation he came to this country. He entered the employ of the Merchants' Loan and Trust Company in Chicago in 1861. Since 1878 he had been a banker and broker, and had acted as broker in many large financial and industrial enterprises, including the sale for English companies of the American Brewing and Malting Company and the Union Stock Yards company and afterward represented large financial interests in Europe. Mr. Henrotin, during the administration of Mayor Carter H Harrison, Sr., agreed to take 92 cents on the dollar script issued by the city and declared illegal. Some time later he cashed the coupons of Municipal bonds when there was no money in the City Treasury. He was the principal founder of the Chicago Board of Trade. He was a Director of the World's Fair at Chicago, Mr. Henrotin was a Chevalier, Legion of Honor (France) and held other orders both from Belgium and Turkey. He was a member of the Chicago Union and Bankers' Clubs.

Syracuse Herald, Syracuse, NY – 4 Feb 1929

WATERHOUSE Charles, Mrs., also known as Countess De Merode of Belgium.

Countess Survives Rigors of War, Killed by Bicycle – Back broken and Face Torn Away by Shell While Conducting Hospital in France

Phoenix, Ariz, Feb 4 – Simplicity in her funeral, the last wish of the Countess de Merode of Belgium, who survived the rigors of the World War to be fatally injured by a youth on a bicycle, was being observed as arrangements were made for the last rites here today. The countess who experienced many of the terrors of battle and was wounded, died Saturday at the age of 42. She was injured last October. Two posts of the American Legion were designated to conduct the services. Her grave was marked by a simple headstone bearing only the name of Mrs. Charles E Waterhouse, by which she was known in private life here, after her second marriage. Decorations for her war service were bestowed upon Countess de Merode by France, England, and Belgium. As a first lieutenant commanding a field hospital near Ypres she was gassed twice, a shell broke her back and another tore away half her face which later was restored by plastic surgery. Her husband was killed in action the day they entered the service. After the war and until 1924 she served under Dr. Royal Copeland of New York as a diagnostician and dietitian. Then she went to Los Angeles to engage in medical and other scientific work. There she married Charles E Waterhouse. Countess de Merode was a direct descendant of the deposed Queen Sofia of Rumania and had been given the title of Lady Meda by King George of England. Twice she was kidnapped in this country by Romanian political conspirators seeking to return her to her native land to take an active part in its political affairs

New York Times, Dec 20, 1929

Plainfield, NJ – Dec 19 – Daniel GREEFS, 50 years old, North Plainfield, died yesterday in Muhlenberg Hospital here. He was born in Belgium and was a designer of jewelry. He was a member of Franklin Lodge, F and AM of Irvington, NJ and Salaam Temple of Newark. Surviving are a son and two daughters.

New York Times, Jan 8, 1931

Louis DELREUX, employed by the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank in this city for the last forty-five years, died yesterday at his home, 443 Fifth Street, Brooklyn. He was born in Belgium in 1845 and came to the United States when he was 21 years old. His wife died several years ago. Mr. DELREUX is survived by a son, two daughters and two sisters.

New York Times, 19 Sep 1933

Westfield, NJ, Sep 18 – Mrs. Josephine CARLIER PRICE, prominent as a concert and choir singer in this section of the State, died yesterday at her home here after a long illness at the age of 53. Born in Belgium she came to this country as a child with her mother and lived in Newark until she came to Westfield forty years ago. A lyric soprano, she appeared on the concert stages of many cities. Her husband, Arthur B Price, survives.

New York Times, Mar 13, 1934

Baltimore, March 12 – Edward BADART, broker and member of the Baltimore Stock Exchange for more than thirty years, died last night at his home in Roland Park. Born in Belgium in 1865, he was educated at Hanover, Germany where he specialized in chemistry under Professor Johann Schalweit. Later he became associated with his granduncles, Badart Freres of London, Lisle, France and Alexandria, Egypt, the firm credited with the discovery that oil could be extracted from cottonseed. Mr. Badart, when living in England, was a member of Hert's Yeoman Cavalry, commanded by Lord Harrington, and won many prizes for shooting and horsemanship. He is survived by a widow and a son, Edward Badart.

New York Times, Nov 18, 1934

Roselle Park, NJ, Nov 17 – Armand BATTA, organizer of the first Belgian relief fund in America, of which former President Herbert Hoover was president, died in the Alexian Brothers Hospital, Elizabeth, following a short illness. For his work in organizing the Belgian fund he was decorated by the late King Albert of Belgium. Born in Belgium, Feb 14, 1859, he spent considerable time in this country, becoming one of its foremost Belgian citizens when he assumed the task of organizing a Belgian relief fund during the World War. Until three years ago he was president of the Belgian Trading Company of New York. He was a member of the Liederkrantz Singing Society of Elizabeth. Surviving are his son, Leo BATTA, in Belgium, and a daughter, Mrs. Nelson Barlo, Pawtucket, RI.

New York Times, Jun 26, 1935

London, June 25 – Mgr Maurice CARTON de WIART, OBE, priest and honorary canon of Westminster Cathedral and brother of a former Prime Minister of Belgium, collapsed and died in the street today of the effects of the heat. He had just left St. Andrew's Hospital in Northwest London, of which he long had been an administrator, when he was seen to stagger and fall. He was taken to the hospital where he was found to be dead. He was 63 years old. Born in Belgium, he studied under the Jesuit fathers in Brussels and Antwerp. Since his ordination, Mgr de Wiart had lived in England. He became connected with Westminster Cathedral in 1908. He was a noted authority on ecclesiastical finances and for years had been treasurer of the Archdiocese. He was one of the executors of the will of the late Cardinal Bourne. England, Belgium and France conferred decorations on him for his World War services. One of his brothers, Count Henry de Wiart, was Belgian Prime Minister in 1920-21. Another, Baron Edmund de Wiart, was Belgian financial delegate to Great Britain during the World War. Mgr de Wiart was one of three sons of Constant Carton de Wiart, who distinguished themselves in the court of the King of Belgium. He was born in Brussels and attended schools in Belgium and other parts of Europe and was ordained a priest in 1895. In 1899 he became secretary to the Bishop of Northampton and ten years later treasurer of the Archdiocese of Westminster. Mgr Carton de Wiart had been a member of the Ministry of Justice of Belgium and Religious Secretary to the King. In 1918 he was special envoy of the Belgian Government and of Cardinal Mercier at the golden jubilee here of Cardinal Gibbons. Mgr de Wiart was an officer of the Order of Leopold, Knight of the Order of the Crown (Belgium), and had received the gold medal of the Reconnaissance Française and the Belgian Medal, First-Class for Civilians.

New York Times, Oct 16, 1935

Eugene BOURNONVILLE, mechanical engineer, inventor and pioneer in the development of acetylene gas illumination, died on Monday at his residence in Jersey City. He was in his seventy-third year. Mr. Bournonville perfected the acetylene illuminator system used in the first automobile headlights and installed the first acetylene gas lights on the Lackawanna Railroad. He also developed the oxy-acetylene gas torch and the welding process used with it. Only recently, it is said, he perfected a rotary valve for automobile engines after working on the device for more than twenty-five years. The valve was given exhaustive tests by the Society of Automotive Engineers and pronounced a success. Some experts say it will have a far-reaching effect on automobile engines of the future. Born in Belgium, Mr. Bournonville came to the United States at the age of 22 and resided in Jersey City since 1894. He was a partner in the former engineering firm of Davis-Bournonville & Co. As a dollar-a-year man during the World War he supervised the manufacture of poison gas containers for the United States Army. While doing this work he was injured in a gas explosion. Mr. Bournonville is survived by his widow, Mrs. Caroline Beriten Bournonville, and two sons, René Bournonville and Maurice Bournonville, who were associated with him in several of his inventions. Two grandchildren, Robert Bournonville and Renée Bournonville and a niece, Mrs. Hortense McClean also survive. A requiem mass will be said for him tomorrow at St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church, Jersey City. Interment will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, North Arlington, NJ

New York Times, 15 Aug 1940

Emile de CALLUWE, who once was a conductor at the Paris Opera and had been an intimate friend of Saint-Saëns, the composer, and Ysaye, the violinist, died on Monday in New York Hospital at the age of 63. He had lived alone at 699 Tenth Avenue and for the last three years had been a teacher of violin and chamber music for the New York City WPA Music Project. Born in Belgium, Mr. de CALLUWE came here as a young man. He had been a citizen for thirty years. In his early days in Belgium he became well known in Europe as a violinist. He was regarded here as an authority on earlier forms of chamber music, for which he had made many arrangements.

New York Times, The (NY) - December 9, 2000

PRESEL-Rosa (nee Himmelblau). Passed away Wednesday, December 6, 2000 at the age of 101. Rosa, devoted wife of the late Adolphe Pressel, was born in Belgium & came to the United States in 1939 where she settled in New York City and became an active supporter of several community and charitable organizations. She was a longtime, active member of Congregation Shearith Israel and its Sisterhood. Her work for the Dalton Community in Israel helped to establish an industry for the Moshav. More recently, her pet project has been Dorot, a local charity which provides food for the homebound. Mrs. Pressel was also an avid bridge master. Rosa has been a tremendous inspiration to both family and friends. She is survived by two sons, Paul and Raymond, five grandchildren, seven great grandchildren and one great, great grandson. Memorial contributions to the Sisterhood of Congregation Shearith Israel, or to Dorot would be greatly appreciated.

New York Times, The (NY) - November 16, 2000

FLEMING-Frederic G. of Port Washington, NY, died November 13th. Born in Belgium, he served with the US Army during World War II. He retired from Air Products in 1970. He is survived by his loving wife, Marthe, daughters, Lynne Goss, Georgia Bill, and Barbara Fleming, and six grandchildren. In lieu of flowers donations may be sent to Camphill Special School, Glenmoore, PA, 19343.

New York Times, The (NY) - February 5, 2000

MANELA-Harriette. Age 73, of Fair Lawn, NJ. Born in Belgium, emigrated to New York City in 1948 after surviving the Holocaust. Survived by her husband Marc, daughters Marlene (John) Sincaglia and Jacqueline (Jerry) Novin, brothers Chalom, Marcel and Albert (Dr. Lynne) Fremder, brother-in-law Willy Manela, grandsons Teddy and Zach Novin and Matthew Sincaglia; and numerous nieces and nephews. Services are 2:00 pm, Sunday, at Robert Schoem's Menorah Chapel, 150 Rt. 4 East, Paramus, New Jersey.